

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This invention relates to an auto-improving display flicker method to eliminate all possible display flicker effects. The method includes the steps: detecting the display flicker level and producing a detection voltage; 5 comparing the detection voltage with a predetermined voltage; automatically switching the currently used inversion technique into an alternately predetermined display flicker processing technique if the detection 10 voltage is greater than the predetermined voltage.